Why Use OnTrax?

IT organizations are expected to do more with less and reduce costs, while still selecting and managing technology solutions that position the business for growth and success. For many companies, one of today's biggest challenges is effectively managing and accounting for the organization's tangible and intangible IT resources. With OnTrax, the infrastructure lifecycle management process just got easier.

OnTrax actively manages agreements, contracts, leases, and renewals, which ensures standardization, efficiency and accuracy in your IT organization. With OnTrax, there's no such thing as unanticipated downtime or stress from IT asset management. OnTrax frees up time so you can focus on your business.

With OnTrax, contract management is simplified.

Your organization can expect:

> A streamlined and straightforward contract renewal process – Manage renewals more efficiently through forecasting reports and automated notifications received 90 to 180 days before the expiration date, depending on your preference. Plus, you can track your pending contract renewal change requests with OnTrax.

> Standardized data from multiple vendors and across many product lines – Access your IT agreements, contracts, leases, and renewals quickly and easily. View contract information, serial numbers, and technical specifications. You can also customize how the data is presented and add specific fields, such as depreciation, power supply, and cooling needs.

> Improved regulatory compliance capabilities – Data gathering is close at hand for processes such as annual IT audits.

> Increased overall business intelligence – Facilitate contract and lease cost forecasting. Prevent "stranded" services, software, and contract assets that result in unexpected maintenance costs.
